For more than four years, the real secretary, William P. Rogers, has operated in his clarations emanated from the White House, On major breakthroughs, the word came from the President. But the explanation of policy invariably was made in the gut-tural, German-accented tones Kissinger. (See also page 21.)

At the state department Wednesday, there was a curious mixture of jubilation and concern. The jubilation came from those who hoped the decision-making for the decision-making for foreign policy would return "to where it belongs."

A more restrained official said there was "a certain anticipation about Dr. Kissinger's arrival and a lot of question marks about whether the fact that he is remaining the president's national secu-

WASHINGTON (UPI) Major contributions to U.S. presidential and vicepresidential candidates during a nine-month period last year totalled about $79 million, the nounced today, the largest amount ever collected for national campaigns.

A 1,900-page compilation by the GAO's office of federal elections reflected contributions in excess of $100 to all candidates for president and vice-president in the form of donations, ticket sales, loans, transfers, interest, rebates and other payments for the period of April 7-Dec. 31, 1972.

"The total of these contribu-tions, ticket safes, loans, and other payments comes to approximately $79 million," the GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, said in a statement accompanying the four-volume report.

Rail Strikes Now Pinching The Economy

Times News Services Most of the 56,000 non-operating Canadian rail workers ended their strike today as its effects spread to other sectors of the economy.

And after two days of talk between railways and em-ployees in Ottawa, Labor Min-ister John Munro turned the dispute back to mediator Judge Alan Gold, of Montreal, who will offer the sides a set of proposals drawn up by the minister's department.

Two regional strikes, one without union sanction but still legal, continued in the Hamilton-Windsor area and in Quebec, where one company secured an injunction forbidding interference with company operations by strikers.

Construction Labor Relations Association, bargaining agent for 850 contractors, has offered pay raises of 45 cents an hour May 1 and 37 cents an hour Oct. 1, 1974, in the extension period.

CLRA president Chuck Con-naghan said the offer amounts to an average 10 per cent increase on existing contracts.

Jim Kinnaird, president of the B.C. and Yukon Building Council, confirmed there have been "discussions" on the subject and unions are studying the proposal.

Union representatives will meet in Vancouver Sept. 14 when it is expected that moves to form a common bar-gaining front of the 18 con-struction unions will be discussed along with the CLRA

So far, six unions have agreed to give their bargaining authority to the joint policy committee on bargaining, two or threee have expressed some reservations but no basic objection, one is opposed and the rest have indicated they will recommend joint bargaining to their members in time for the Sept.

"Major features of the economy in the second quarter in-cluded rising food prices and declining manufacture and sales of food products, some decline in production of con-sumer goods, slight declines in several construction-oriented industries, increased energy consumption and advances in mining and paper production," the resort said.

The one-per-cent, growth of nation's real domestic product compared with in-creases of 3.3 per cent in the first quarter and 3.2 per cent in the last quarter of 1972, the two largest monthly increases since before the 1970 economic slump.

The real domestic product is production in constant dollars, with inflation eliminated from the figures, and includes major categories of agriculture, forestry, fishing and trapping, mining, manufac-turing, construction, transportation, electric and other utiliwholesale and retail trade, finance, insurance and real estate and all services.

The trend of the figures closely parallels government figures on Canada's gross national product, which have not yet been reported for the sec-ond quarter. The GNP figure for the first quarrer of 1973 showed a 4.4 per-cent rise, with 1.5 per cent attributed to inflation leaving a 2.9 per cent in real growth. The real national product figures, given in constant dollars, also in cludes some production of foreign-owned firms in Canada which the GNP does not include, the spokesman said.

Birth of a Notion

Unofficial but apparently firm reports that the provincial government has formed a three-man ministerial committee to consider the question of a convention centre here, perhaps including community cultural facilities as well, bring new life to the idea. They also emphasize the fact that Greater Victoria still lacks such a centre, after many years of proposals, counterproposals and rejections.

Perhaps this will be the time when acceptable ideas jell and the community can get behind a plan that will meet some of its current needs. It will not be enough for the local public to sit back and see what provincial government money will buy them. That attitude would not indicate enough local enthusiasm or support for such a project, and the government understandably could lose in-

Mayor Pollen and Alderman Tindall appear to be on a promising tack in the present instance. The recent suggestion for another try to integrate city and CPR interests in a joint undertaking behind the Empress Hotel has possibilities, even though the somewhat similar proposal of 1968 was never pursued to completion. And the present provincial administration has shown a general interest in joint undertakings involving private and government capital.

It is important at the present stage, however, to keep all options open. If the government has in mind suggestions for a centre that would embrace both convention facilities and concert hall accommodation - an even greater need for the whole community - then the Greater Victoria councils should give discussion high priority.

There is certainly a time element in the current development. The city is already contemplating purchase of the Royal Theatre, principally as a "home" for the Symphony orchestra, and this opportunity will not lie around indefinitely. Two prime sites for early construction and later expansion. of a centre are available - one in the Royal Theatre block and the other on the old Crystal Garden grounds. These, too, will not remain available forever.

If the provincial government is in truth now interested, the city and at least the three adjacent municipalities should put the project at the top of their lists and try to get at least a nucleus project started. The community has gained nothing by years of postponement and indecision-except perhaps a reputation for postponement and

Prices at the Money Pump

CALGARY - In Victoria last week Premier Dave Barrett was wondering aloud whether it wasn't about time to launch an inquiry into the way oil companies price gasoline, fuel oil and natural gas. In Edmonton a legislative committee chairman announced his committee was considering putting the wholesaling of gasoline and fuel oil under strict government regulation.

Taken together the reports indicate that political suspicion of commercial practices of oil companies at the retail end are as lively as ever. It's forty years since a parliamentary committee in Ottawa set out to find out how much it cost to make a gallon of gasoline, and got lost in the cotton-wool jungle of oil marketing

Complex Breakdown

The first thing that committee wanted to know was how many gallons of gasoline could be made from a 35-gallon barrel of crude oil. That, it was told, depended on the kind of crude oil. Okay, 35 gravity crude? Well, you have to know the sulphur content and the viscosity. Then make it low-viscosity sweet crude? Then you must know how much gasoline you want, how much fuel oil.

The questioning went round and round and nothing much came out of it, except a deepening suspicion that the consumer was being scuttled at the gas pumps. Since then, the new generation of questioners had best be warned, the internal operations of the oil marketers have become infinitely more complicated. Let's get down to cases.

The price of gasoline has been rising steadily at the pumps over the past year because, it is explained, of rising crude oil prices. After being held well below the level of competitive American crude crude oil prices have in fact been raised.

Some weeks ago Imperial Oil, which traditionally sets the price for crude oil in Alberta, announced it was raising its posted field price by 40 cents a barrel. To which Joe Public, fingering his wallet at the gas pump, might have asked:

"What's up, Doc? If increased crude prices force the price of gasoline up, what's the biggest refiner in all Canada doing raising crude prices all on its own

That is a very good question, indeed, when you consider that the raise will add $41 million a year to the cost of the oil Imperial uses in its refineries.

The answer is also very good, indeed. Imperial also produces 400,000 barrels of oil per day in western Canada. After it pays itself an additional 40 cents per barrel on the 280,000 barrels per day it uses, it will collect an additional 40 cents per barrel on the 120,000 surplus production it sells. That works out at a whopping increase of $17 million a year in profits from crude oil sales.

But there is more to this for Imperial than just money. This profit will be made at the expense of Imperial's competitors, and they cannot escape paying tribute to Imperial even if they force the consumers to provide it out of higher pump postings.

Shell Oil produces about 100,000 barrels of crude oil per day while its western oil supplied refineries consume 170,000 barrels per day. Instead of having surplus crude oil production which it can sell at a profit, like Imperial, Shell must go into the market and buy an additional 70,000 barrels a day. Shell will be worse off, thanks to Imperial's price leadership, by $10 million a year.

What applies to Shell is true of all the others, to a greater or lesser degree. Gulf comes out a shade better than Shell. Its daily production is around 140,000 barrels a day as against a refinery consumption of 180,000 barrels. It will only be worse off by $5,800,000.

Texaco Canada is worst hit of all. provided of course that you ignore the intra-company relationship between it and the Texas Company which owns 68 per cent of Texaco Canada, Texaco Canada's production is approximately 35,000 barrels a day compared with its western crude refining capacity of 135,000 a day. This leaves it with a deficit of 100,000 barrels a day and an annual loss of $14,600,000, courtesy of Imperial Oil's 40

The Texas Company, however, operates a fully owned subsidiary in Canada — Texaco Exploration Company - which produces about 100,000 barrels of crude a day and does no refining. It hence will profit by precisely the $14,600,000 a year that Texaco Canada will lose. Again courtesy of Imperial Oil. The Texas Company, however will absorb only 68 per cent of Texaco Canada's extra crude costs but will pocket 100 per cent of Tex-Ex's increased income.

Increasing Prices

The calculation of company "losses" is of course only hypothetical, for hard on the increase in crude oil prices came boosts at the gas pumps. Gulf and Shell both announced last week that they will be increasing the wholesale prices of gasoline and fuel oil by two cents a gallon or so. That will take care of Imperial's 40 cents a barrel nicely, with a penny or two to spare.

Only yesterday the last part of the puzzle fell into place. Imperial Oil announced a 1.6 cent-per-gallon increase

Even this, however, has its wildly contradictory aspects. If Imperial had decided to keep prices down and increase its share of the market at the expense of its rivals, it would consume more of its own crude, have less to sell and hence its $17 million would shrink. And the less crude its competitors buy from it, as their share of the market drops, the less profit tribute will they have to pay to

Imperial Oil. It is all remindful of the many slick schemes old John D. Rockfeller, the original "robber baron" founder of Imperial Oil, used to devise to have his competitors earn profits for him. He once agreed to ship his entire crude oil output on a certain railway, provided the railway paid him a 15-cents-per-barrel secret rebate on every barrel of competitors' oil it moved. John D. would have loved Imperial

In a recent Times' article "What About Those Cars", the editor speaks in demeaning terms of what he sees as City Council's attitude that, "downtown will eventually become glutted with automobiles anyway, so let's bring the problem to a head and we'll work from there." To me this seems like a reasonable approach—for two reasons:

1. Few definite measures are ever taken until a problem is brought to a

2. Improving transport systems in the central business district promotes heavier automobile usage, recreating the snarled traffic problem

Rather than worry that this bold concept of rehumanizing the downtown area with permanent pedestrian malls, "may be jumping the gun", I feel the city fathers should get moving lest we find the race with the automobile and blacktop has already been run-and lost!-R. J. Parker, 1605 Sonria Place.

Next month will be a month of disbursements for the city taxpayer, for not only do the general taxes in the city fall due on September 30, if the rebate on certain portions of the tax is to be obtained, but the same date has been set for the Saanich municipality. As 60 per cent of the revenue of the adjacent municipality is raised in Victoria, it will be seen that the average citizen of Victoria will have to put his hand deep into the pocket next month to satisfy the tax collector. Nixon: Defence and Defiance to talk his way out of the Watergate tragedy has failed, but he still has the power to act, and to propose remedies for the crimes he admits were committed. So maybe now he will come forward with practical legislation to correct the system that made Watergate possible.

He has condemned what he calls the "backward-looking obsession with Watergate," and has pledged himself to correct the atmosphere in which the Watergate crimes were committed, but he has done absolutely nothing to propose legislation that would stop the fiddling with campaign money, control the irre-sponsible power of the White House staff, or avoid the bugging of private citizens.

As a defence of his administration's record on the Watergate, or an answer to the troubled questions on the minds of many people, his televised speech after months of silence was a disappointment, If not a disaster. But if he didn't answer the questions of the past, at least he said some hopeful things about the future.

"In the future," he said, "my administration will be more vigilant in insuring that such abuses (of the past) do not take place, and that officials at every level understand that they are not to take place . . .

Political Decency

"I pledge to you tonight that I will do all that I can to insure that one of the results of Watergate is a new level of political decency and integrity in America

This raises a fundamental question about Nixon. There is scarcely a noble principle in the American Constitution that he hasn't defended in theory or defied in practice. Few presidents of this country have been more eloquent in defence of the First Amendment, on freedom of the press or dissent, than Nixon, or more vicious in opposing those freedoms when they opposed his purposes. And the irony of this contradiction is that he is as positive, and even sincere, in his support of the principles of freedom as in his defiance.

Nevertheless, he still has a chance to

The Congress is struggling with new legislation to control political campaign financing, to write new stattelephones of private citizens can be intercepted for "national security" reasons, and who shall decide the difference between national security, and political or personal convenience.

The President's speech didn't deal with this problem, and it wasn't because he gave was only one of more than a dozen speeches suggested to him, and even drafted for him, by his associates inside the government and his friends outside the government.

Most of these drafts suggested that he define the questions on the minds of the American people, that he answer them candidly, admit his own responsibility for the atmosphere that produced the Watergate scandals, and take his chance of telling the truth. But he chose-instead to defend everything and admit nothing except the zeal of people who had been misled by the violent dissidents of the

The result was that he merely appealed for trust without giving persuasive reasons for removing the mistrust of his opponents, and ended up about where he was before. Even so, he still retains the power of the presidency and can do much more to prove his point by acting rather than by speaking.

Change His Government

He can change his government. He has the power to bring new men into his cabinet, and introduce new policies into his legislative program. He was in trouble after his television speech because he merely went over the same old arguments which had not been persuasive in the past. But he is still the President and he is not as trapped as he seems to

"We must not stay so mired in Watergate," he said, "that we fail to respond to challenges of surpassing importance to America and the world. We cannot let an obsession with the past destroy our hopes for the future."

He had the words of the future but not the melody or the program. He neither answered the questions of the past nor proposed specific remedies for the future. But he still has time. Any day now he can come forward with definite and specific proposals to correct the evils that led to Watergate, and these are bound to make a better impression on the country than his disappointing

You Have in Jesus of the Gospel A Consummate Power Politician

By JAMES EAYRS

"Power is poison." So a local pundit, quoting Henry Adams, writes approvingly, adding that "when a man merely wants power he's demented right there; doubly demented once he gets it; triply demented if he has it for any long time; quadruply demented if that power is great and requires great decisions."

A strident variation on a more and more familiar theme - power's corruption of those who wield it and hanker after it. Malcolm Muggeridge puts it this way: "Power is utterly evil. Power belongs to the Devil. Everybody who exercises power is co-operating with the Devil." Germaine Greer, asked what women might contribute if they had more power, responds: "Women have never had a chance to exercise fered that peculiar distortion of character that comes with having the lives of people in your hands.

Results count — and look at them: millions today believe in His divinity. Power over opinion is ultimate power. Get them to think and they will do what you wan them to do.
That is the object of the exercise of power.

Gandhi's Style

Lord, the saintly figure of the Mahatma is often cited as an example of a profoundly influential figure who refused to play the power game. But this is to confuse the life style with the political style.

Certainly the "half-naked, seditious fakfr" as Churchill once called Gandhi seemed to be at loggerheads with power, at the antipole of power. None of its pomp and panoply for him. Such were Gandhi's tactics. They bring to mind the kind of pacifist Henry Kissinger describes as "the only kind I agree to talk to — those who bar the consequences of nonviolence right to the end.

In four and one half years as President, Nixon has mostly maintained a public demeanor of calm and controlin part, perhaps, by being so liftle in public. But there have been times when he let the

That same curious personalization appeared in other Nixon war speeches, along with the argument of American power and the need to avoid "humiliation." They have avoided, wherever possible, the time-honoured process of making statements of position in plenary. They have also been remarkably reticent in the private working sessions of the various sub-committees. They always seem to have swollen delega tions looking on with becoming inscrutability.

At first, the conventional wisdom among Western delegates was that they were learning the ins and outs of United Nations life. The assumption was that, after all the years of isolation, they had few diplomats able to cope with routine negotia-tions. This has turned out to be a little less than the truth.

No Mystery

The fact of the matter is that the Chinese here are quite accomplished negotiators. They simply have a style of their own. They work on the principle that words in formal session are so much wasted breath, and that the real work is done in the corridors, or those strange imper-sonal armchairs in the delegates' lounges of the Palais des Nations which seem to inin a receptive ear.

This, of course, has little to do with the mysterious East. If anything, it is a case of protective mimicry. It is the way most Western representatives and willingly. atives work, and willingly admit they do. And the Chinese have adapted very well. They are expert lobbyists.

China at the United Nations

Their strategy here has been to curry favour with the developing countries and to undermine and quietly insult the Russians on every possi-ble occasion. They do not appear to regard the Sea-Bed Committee as a serious body devoted to the reform of international maritime law so much as a forum for diplomatic warfare. They let the other 92 delegations do the ac-

A Man for All Media Gets Trimmed Down to Size

The trouble with a small gallery is that the exhibit is necessarily small—which is to say little about monumentality, of course.

But it is a frustrating limitation when so much of the artist's work is both monu-mental and sizeable.

University of British Colum-Thomas, being a man to tackle all media, has worked both large and small—but unfortunately it is only his smaller works we are able to view in his current exhibition at Nookta Court's Zan Gal-mortgage loan on another residence, minister in charge of housing Lorne Nicolson announced Wednesday.

Nicolson released an order-in-council passed by the cabinet last week, making the new policy effective for homes purchased after Aug. 16th.

The government second mortgage loan will remain at the maximum levels of $5,000 for new homes and $2,500 for older homes.

Nicolson said there have been cases in the past where people have had to move in-voluntarily or have had their land expropriated and have become ineligible for the mortgage loan plan.

"These changes also recognize the fact that modern mo-

First of all, tubes are out! Solid state is a transistorized system doing away with a great majority of tubes. And with them, the major cause of TV repairs.

And so, servicing is simplified! Transistorized parts are easier to replace, cutting down on a lot of expensive labour rates.

This and the fact that Baycrest also has easy to operate front mounted controls, built-in dipole telescopic antenna and a sturdy carrying handle, makes this value-priced model just what you've been looking for.

S. Alberta Plumbers Strike

CALGARY (CP) - About 850 plumbers and pipefitters in Southern Alberta were to go on strike today after the collapse of contract negotia-tions with the Mechanical Contractors Association of Al-

Lyle Tackaberry, a spokesman for the United Associa-tion of Plumbers and Pipefitters, Local 496, said there was a 16-cent-per-hour difference between the two parties when the final scheduled round of talks broke down Wednesday afternoon.

The hardest-hit area is the city of Calgary, where 650 members of the local are employed. The other 200 work for contractors in Alberta south of Red Deer to the U.S. border, but contractors in Red Deer and Lethbridge, who have separate contracts with the union, are not affected.

Tackaberry said emergency services for "protection of life and property" will be provided by union members.

SASKATOON (CP) - Compulsory vehicle inspection and mandatory use of seatbelts were recommended Wednesday by the Saskatchewan Motor Club in a brief to a legislative committee on highway traffic and safety. Education programs to combat the rising incidence of alcohol-related traffic accidents were also urged.

The club said there is "proof that penalties against impaired drivers are not having the desired effect."

ing the desired effect.'

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) -RCMP reported no new leads Wednesday night in the search for convicted murder-er Harold Billyard who did not return to the federal penitentiary here after being given a day pass.

Billyard, 26, is believed to be heading east. His home-town is Dunnville, Ont.

A nation-wide warrant has een issued for his arrest and police forces in Manitoba and Ontario have been alerted to watch for the prisoner who is considered dangerous.

Billyard was convicted in 1966 of the murder of sixyear-old Michael Clancy in Red Deer.

HOBBEMA Alta (CP) Damage of about $56,000 resuited Wednesday in a collision of two gravel trucks near this community about 45 miles south of Edmonton. The two trucks, one loaded, exploded on impact.

Ken Kaiser of Wetaskiwin. Alta., owner of one of the trucks, was released after treatment at hospital for minor burns. Jack Johner of Edmonton, driver of the other remained in Hospital with undetermined injuries.

JURORS WARNED ABOUT GOSSIP

An inquest into last Saturday's plane crash at Sidney was adjourned Wednesday until Oct. 29.

The lengthy delay was ordered by Coroner Edmond St. to complete a report on the crash that claimed five lives.

The coroner warned the seven-man jury against being influenced by gossip about the crash during the adjournment They should listen only to testimony at the inquest, he said.

Those killed were pilot Ted Clark, 22, of Marine Apartments, Sidney; Janet Quelch, 19, of Vancouver: Bruce Gordon, 27, of 1256 Roy; Janet Ruttan, 24, of 1256 Roy; and Katherine Roderick, 24, of New Brunswick.

The badly burned bodies were identified by Victoria dentist Dr. William Evans—and Sidney RCMP constable Jose Paul Brochez.

Boxing: Sometimes

There's Truth in It

Boxing, except for sporadic revivals, went off home television long ago. But promoters are still making a buck, or attempting to, by showing closed-circuit TV of big fights on the big screen.

Ready?
There will be one of these again next month, on Sept. 10, to be precise, at Memorial Arena.
That's when Muhammad Ali, sometimes known as Cassius Clay, but only by Joe Frazier to his face, meets Ken Norton; and just who is Ken Norton?

Norton is the fellow who made Ali say "I think I've got a busted jaw" the last time they met, and Norton also took that decision from the former heavyweight champion. This is the rematch.

is the rematch.

It has been billed, appropriately as "Ali's Revenge" or,

The same held true in the Ali-Norton scrap. Nobody was prepared to believe that one either. There are other parallels.

Always . . . 'The Questions'

he didn't. Frazier bombed out, so did the light on the big screen here and Zubray left town whimpering like a whipped pup. "Never again," he promised.

So far he's kept his word, but wait: There's a new name on the coast. It's Pacific Coast Sports Ltd. The principals are well known in B.C. boxing — Al Principe and Dave Brown, Principe a long-time promoter and manager, and Brown a referee and former chairman of the B.C. Boxing Commission.

They have been around or, as it is said in the trade: . . . have the entrepreneurship and boxing promotional talents to bring Western Canadian fans the best in closed-circuit TV."

There, I've said it, and I'm glad.

'The questions persist about this one. Has Ali lost his

That's what Victoria soccer star Ike MacKay believes and he's working hard to prove there's a better way. What MacKay would like to see is a sort of mini-sport with grounds and equipment scaled down to size for boys under 12 in all games, but particularly in soccer.

And it's with this goal in mind that MacKay and severvolunteer helpers have been conducting an extensive survey, using eight and nine-year-old players, at the University of Victoria.

MacKay and aides Mike Sails, Chris de Grout, Don Shandley, Dave Martin, Rex Craig, Peter Zachary and Dave and Joanne Kelpin have been observing six boys each

The watchers take note of details like how many times a boy receives the ball and how long he keeps possession of first on a normal full-size soccer field and later on a scaled-down pitch less than half the size, with smaller goals and a smaller ball.

* * * Each time, too, selected boys are fitted with pedo-meters to measure how far they run in an average game

As well, the findings will be sent to the Canadian Soccer Association and, says Mac-

Sport," written by Murray Smith of the University of Alberta, gave MacKay the idea for his study.

"In China, Russia, many and now in England, they are far ahead of us in sport," MacKay said. "They are all doing this already in soccer and in China and Russia they even have scaled down volleyball and table national Brian Hughes, whose son John is one of the survey "guinea-pigs", backs Mac-Kay's scaling down idea to the "Boys waste 50 per cent of a game running backwards and forwards between the penalty areas on a big field," Hughes said. "And the size of a normal goal doesn't bear any relation to their stature."

Many interesting aspects have already been revealed in the study, said MacKay. The researchers have found, for example, that the boys' performances go "way down" during the second half of a match on a full man-size field, whereas the amount of effort is consistent right through on a mini-pitch.

Perhaps a little surprising is the evidence turned in by the pedometers that during a one-hour game the boys cover a far greater distance on the smaller field.

This, MacKay maintains, is because the ball is never too far out of reach and the boys are motivated to try to do bet-

MacKay looked at the group 22 boys, gathered round and so eager to get started, and said he was sure youngsters would learn more by playing on a small field and, most important, "I think they'll enjoy playing more.

"Of course, you never know with kids—they might say anything when it comes to tape the attitude test,"

MacKay pointed out.

Just then, a keen voice piped up from the circle of small faces.

"Are we playing on the small field today, Ike?"
"No boys, today we're going to use the big field."
"Hooray!" was the loud

chorus. Ike turned slowly and grinned.

See what I mean . . . "

FREDERICTON (CP) There was no talk of an easy round of the Canadian junior men's golf championship today.

First-round leaders Sandy Harper, a juvenile from Nan-aimo, and Rod Spittle of Niagara Falls, Ont.; were only one stroke ahead of their nearest competitors. At least 25 others were within striking range of the lead. The leaders brought in one-under par 69s Wednesday on the par 70, 5,959-yard Fredericton Golf Club course.

Harper and Spittle are the only golfers to break par this

Harper, only 16, carded a two-under 33 on the front nine and one-over 36 on the back. He managed par on the tough par five, 518-yard seventh hole and the difficult par three, 218-yard 17th. "The 17th is definitely the toughest," Spittle said later. "It's a long par-three with the out-of-bounds on one side and the water and bush on the other.'

dericton club course plays tough because of small greens protected by hazards.

"What you gain on the front nine, you can lose on the last six if you're not careful," said Spittle. He stroked five birdies. while Harper brought home

Harper agreed, he said he found the course easy except for the 14th, 15th, 16th and

"I bogeyed three of the last five holes," he said. The juvenile title also is at stake here, and should a juvenile like Harper come in low for the tournament he would claim both crowns.

Laurie Peet of Cowichan had a 35-39—74 while Lee Haskell of Uplands, Victoria, ballooned to a 38-42-80. Haskell had been the leader for B.C. in the team matches.

Hay Shortage 'Baffling'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Agriculture department officials here were baffled Wednesday by the latest development in the hay shortage situation in the B.C. interior.

Officials said plenty of hay has been located in the Peace River district and truckers throughout the interior have responded to appeals to help transport it, but so far no ranchers or farmers have officially requested assistance under the government's emergncy plan.

A B.C. Cattlemen's Association spokesman said it is po sible ranchers are out gathering what hay they can from their fields and will determine their winter needs later.

The driest year in the interior since 1903 and an expensive winter kill this year have resulted in the hay shortage.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A private funeral was to be held today for Jonathan Webster Cornett, 91, a former Vancouver mayor and MLA. He began his political life as a councillor in South Vancouver in 1923 and in 1952, when he retired, he was an alderman. * VANCOUVER (CP) — The greater Vancouver Regional District decided Wednesday to table a vote on flouridation of water until some time next year. In the last vote in 1968, Van-

Baby Found

'Red and Raw'

SURREY (CP) - Surrey Memorial is investigating charges by a Delta couple about the condition in which they say they found their nine-month-old son at the hospital. The baby's father, William R. Inglis, says in a letter to the hospital that he and his wife found their son covered with excrement and with "red marks on both cheeks when they visited him

Inglis said his son now is terrified of every man who comes into the house.

He said the cheek marks could have been caused by tape used to hold the baby's head during x-rays.

Hospital administrator Margaret Woodward said she has never heard of tape being used this way. She said she did not think the nursing staff would be negligent, but declined further comment pending an investigation.

India Tightens Up Political Prisons

By RAM SUNDAR

CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) - Security measures in prisons in Kera-la, India's southernmost province, are being tightened up to ensure that no one is able

The precautions are directed mainly at political prisoners belonging to the pro-Peking Marxist-Communist Party. Official figures of their number are not available but the party says "several hundred comrades are languishing under trying conditions."

The security steps have followed in the wake of a mass escape of Marxist prisoners from the Viyur special jail near the town of Trichur. They were being tried for the murder of a wealthy landlord.

TORONTO (CP) - Xaviera Hollander, the self-styled "happy hooker," tossed an element of spice Wednesday into a thinkers' conference on how to improve munications in Canada.

Spirit of Old Vienna Recreated in Music

The atmosphere of a past era with all its charm, melody and gaiety, will be recreated Sunday evening at McPherson Playhouse.

It is an occasion upon which a group of professional artists and accomplished student mu-sicians will pool their talents on behalf of the Ethel James Scholarship Fund.

This fund was instituted a year ago to honor one of Victoria's long-time outstanding musicians and teachers.

At the age of 90 Miss James retains her interest in music and the students to whom, through the years, she has been a constant source of inspiration and encouragement.

The entertainment which begins at 8:30 p.m. Sunday, is in the form of a music half presentation of song and dance under the title, Vienna

He'd Never Quit Spanish Heaven

By JOHN CUNNINGHAM

MALAGA, Spain (CP) — Spanish and Canadian flags rose above the roof of a dazzling new villa in the San Anton housing development in the hills back of Malaga.

For Roger Wilson, 33, the flag-raising ceremony and the party which followed in his 1.3 million peseta ($22,800) home was a major step in the process of putting down roots in Spain.

"I wouldn't want to go back to Canada," the former Montrealer said. "When I visit there, my friends seem to be under a lot more pressure."

Wilson owns El Trovador, a convivial little bar in downtown Malaga. Most of the customers are Spaniards, though Canadians drop in from time to time.

"I opened the bar in 1964 with a 55 licence," he said.
"There's so much red tape and expense involved in opening a bar in Canada, I'd never have been able to do

"Then I started to get a lot of Canadian tenants. Usually, they'd intend to stay for a month and be here for six months.

During December, January and February a lot of my apartments were rented to Canadians. I could have rented 200 units if I had them, and a great percentage would have been to Canadians.

Perhaps the largest single concentration of Canadians living in Spain is in the Nerja area, where a Canadian company is building a 400-home Andalusian village. The $9-million project is due to be completed in 1975.

Ken Brabant, formerly of Edmonton, director and administrator of the company called Invlico of Espanola S. A., said that already between 250 and 300 Canadians live in the village, either part-time or the year around.

"The climate and the lower cost of living are the main attractions," he said.

... And Bill Has Regrets About Leaving Lighthouse

By DAVE AGNEW

COVE ISLAND, Ont. (CP)—In three years Bill Spears will have to retire and move into the straight world, something he has not been a part of for most of his 62 years.

Mr. Spears, son of a light-house keeper, arrived on Flowerpot Island in Georgian Bay when he was six months old. Except for six years in the army, he has lived on one or another of the Upper Great Lakes lighthouse islands.

For the last 24 years his home has been on this privately-owned island, 10 miles off the tip of the Bruce Peninsula, where he has kept a vigil on ships passing through the straits between Lake Human and Coopen Pay.

an interview. "This is the only life I've really ever

The noise of the expressways that snake through the cities is far away. The silence is broken only by the squawk of the gulls and the occasional motor boat.

The road in front of his home is the blue-green water, so clear and cold you can drink it, he said. The back-yard is hundreds of acres of thick bush. His newest neighbor is a large black bear.

"He just poked his head up at the kitchen window one day about three years ago," said Mr. Spears, a "We gave him a bone and off he went into the bush. He comes back now twice a day and sticks his head through the back door, waiting for his

Tobermory who saves all the bones for us."

As the ferry from Manitoulin Island passes in front, Bill Spears and his wife give the bear some gum drops. The tourists crowd the side of the boat, cameras clicking away.

"I'll miss him," says Mr.

Spears. "He's an easy target for some brave hunter."

The 90-foot lighthouse tower is fully automated now as the giant lenses which came from France revolve around a 450-watt mercury-vapor bulb whose light may be seen up to 50 miles away. In the past the lenses were operated by 150-pound weights which Mr. Spears routinely had to wind up like a grandfather clock.

Now he makes sure the bulb doesn't burn out and its temperature doesn't rise too high. He also must report wave and weather conditions every six hours, functions that will soon become automatic.

"I'm mostly a groundskeeper now," he said, "making sure that vandals don't break the equipment."

There used to be a lot of satisfaction in the job, he said. It was as if you felt you had a personal hand in helping guide the ships past the Several sunken vessels lie off the shore.

The lighthouse, with seven-foot-thick walls at the base tapering to three feet at the top, took one year to build and was completed in 1856:

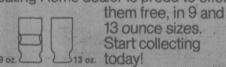

"There are 109 steps," said Bill Spears. "I've climbed them so often I think I count them in my sleep now."

Garibaldi Park

The lofty and lovely Coast Mountains have long drawn superlatives of language from the lips of men. Except for the occasional breach—the Fraser Valley is one, the Skeena River surges through another—the Coast Mountains form an unbroken chain of peaks from the South coast of British Columbia to well within the Yukon, a distance of some 1,000 miles.

In 1860 the crew of one of Her Majesty's ships moored in Howe Sound was moved to name one of the prominent peaks after the Italian patriot Guiseppe Garibaldi; and in 1920 the "natural beauties" of the area, from 30 to 70 miles north of Vancouver were preserved in Garibaldi Park.

The topography, climate and accessibility of Garibaldi Park are such that it is a paradise for the skier, climber, camper, hunter, hiker and fisherman alike. The 480,000 acres, including some 44,000 acres set aside as a special nature conservation area, offer a wide range of awe-inspiring scenery from the panoramic peaks to the rolling alpine meadows.

Whatever your recreational plans — camping, hunting, hiking, fishing, climbing, skiing, you're sure to find an outstanding selection of the equipment you need advertised in the classified pages of your Victoria Daily Newspaper.

Dominates Meeting

By LAURENCE STERN Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The voice quavered at times and the tension blazed in his face throughout. But the president kept his Watergate defence perimeters intact during the 50-minute performance at San Clemente Wednesday that can be called nothing less than a full-scale confrontation.

Ordinarily the announce-ment of William P. Rogers replacement by Henry Kissinger as secretary of state would have been golden grist the Washington news mills, worthy enough a subject to dominate a presidential press conference

This was no ordinary time, however, and the pent up tide of Watergate questions came bursting through the sluices as soon as President Nioxn finished his prepared an-nouncment. The Kissinger appointment might just as well have been a local postmas-tership for all the attention it was accoreded.

But some politicians, some members of the press and television are deflecting him from doing his job by exploiting Watergate. They are people, he said, who didn't accept his 1972 mandate, who don't want a stronger America, who don't want the burdensome federal bureaucracy trimmed back, who don't want more power returned to the people.

Rebels Lose 3 Positions

Cambodian government troops have recaptured three positions important to the defence of the provincial capital of Kompong Speu and Phnom Penh's highway to the sea, the military command reported today.

India Troubles Not Over

NEW DELHI (AP) - Monsoon rains have almost erased India's four-year drought and the threat of famine this year, but the country's food prob-lems are far from over.

Some crop damage was caused by the late arrival of the rains, which did not begin in earnest until early July. Widespread flooding in the north, where the parched land could not hold the water; added to the crop losses.

Prime Minister Indira Ghandi's government is counting on the much-needed rains to cool the tempers of consumers angry drought-induced sho shortages and high prices. However, two difficult months remain be-fore grain planted in late June and early July is ready for harvesting.

"By the first of November, the grain should be dried, threshed and in the retail outlets," said a Western agriculgot to squirm through those 21/2 months."

Government buffer stocks are almost nil. The spring wheat yield was much smaller than expected and the government bought from Indian farmers little more than half the 8.1 million tons of wheat that had been counted poor crop and the govern-ment's ineptitude in procure-ment forced Mrs. Gandhi to buy grain on the world market when prices were at record highs.

The government has re-fused to disclose how much grain will be imported, but of-ficial sources have indicated it will be about 41/2 million tons, in addition to two million tons already bought.

Hoarding has taken millions of tons of grain off the mar-ket, which has aggravated the shortages caused by smaller crops. Prices of commodities have shot up and supplies dwindled, causing consumer rebellions.

Police killed seven rioters last week in the central India city of Bhopal, where students began the country's latest agitation against high prices. Many farmers have held their grain off the market because the government offered the equivalent of $100 a ton for it—roughly half what New Delhi pays for foreign wheat if it buys now,

Senate Science Group Bid For a Further Mandate

By JEFF CARRUTHERS Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA - The third and final report of the senate special committee on science polpublic about Sept. 15, according to committee chairman Sen. Maurice Lamontagne.

The committee report will recommend that the senate committee be reconstituted when the senate resumes sitting in mid-October and that the committee be given a new mandate - to investigate the role of research and development in improving social systems in Canada.

The new mandate, if granted, would require a new set of public hearings, probably starting next spring, and a new chairman.

The present chairman, Lamontagne, says he will be busy with "other matters" and he will refuse any offer to stay on as chairman.

The principal concern of the senator, once the final report of his committee is released, will be organizing Canada's first conference on the future, for release in a month's time is about 300 pages long, is already in the hands of the government's printers, and deals with the senate committee's long-awaited recommendations on re-organizing the government's science agencies and science policy-mak-

Included in the report, sources say, is a recommen dation to give the two-year-old science ministry more "teeth" in co-ordinating and overseeing federal scientific

There is also a recommendation about re-organizing the federal granting agencies, including the National Research Council (NRC).

The sources say that many of the important reor-ganization recommendations of the senate report are already being implemented or are about to be implemented by the Liberal government.

For example, the science ministry hopes to have its final recommendation on the structure of the granting agencies and of NRC before cabinet either just before or just after the senate committee report is made public.

The final report will also restate a number of recommendations made in the second report last year, the sources say, including the recommendation that Canada establish a commission on the future, to get the country's institutions to start including considerations of the future in their day-to-day activities.

The report, according sources, also reiterates the need for the federal government to step up its activities to stimulate more innovative activity in, or closer to, in-dustry than in the past, using research and development to strengthen the Canadian industrial economy.

The final report culminates The resulting script, according to one Arab attending the more than 51/2 years of activifirst public demonstration of the system, is "perfect. Science policy observers generally agree that the work of the senate science policy committee was instrumental in getting the federal and provincial governments to start co-ordinating science activi-ties and to start focussing science to bettering the public

In fact, the proposed new mandate for the committee would carry its activities to its next logical phase-the of how science and technology, research and dev-elopment, can be used by society to tackle and improve elopment, transportation lei-sure, criminal rehabilitation, health, welfare and education.

For Senator Lamontagne, the idea of stimulating Cana-

In an interview, he explained that he sees his futures conference next spring as acting as a much-needed science policy experts on the one hand and the decision makers at various levels of

"I'm fed up," he said. "with the experts meeting in isolation and the decisionformation and expertise is available."

The futures conference will be designed to bring together a number of genera-tors and suppliers of information, such as the Economic Council, the new Ritchie Institute, the universities and the Club of Rome, together with

The D.C. city council gave preliminary approval this week to a measure that would regulate all repair shops doing work in Washington. The law would require a certified repairman in every shop, establish a system for handling consumers' comhandling consumers' com-plaints and impose jail terms and fines for firms found to be violating the law.

Betty's Way With Ham Flows Over Into Print

By ANDREW MALCOLM

HILAND, Wyo. (NYT) — The pretty young woman sat at her desk. She was confused. As she stared out the window, something stirred within her, something strange, something she had never before experienced.

Was it her feelings for Jack? And that wonderful moonlight swim in the park? Or was it, yes, of course, that was it. Suddenly she began to type, her fingers passionately caressing the keys as the words of love flowed like a flooding river.

And so 30 years ago Betty realized for the first time that she was meant to write. That she would write true confession stories like

And thousands of women would read them and cry and suffer right along with Brad and Pam and Ted and Sally. And all those other pretend people who populate the pulpy pages of Real Confessions, Daring Romances, My Confession and Revealing Romances. Stories like "He Gave Me Melt In Your Mouth Kisses," "At 14 I already Had a Past" and "His looks Raped Me."

Few readers would suspect that the auwidow who runs a Chevron gasoline station, a post office, a ham sandwich stand and is the entire population of this microdot of a town in the vast void that is central Wyom-

She is Betty Evenson, a fast-talking, loudlaughing friendly woman who gets most of her soapy story ideas from the truck drivers who stop to use the store's bathroom and gulp down the "sagebrush ham sandwiches" that have made The Bright Spot (one long and two short rings on the telephone) famous

'Everybody who stops here is automati-cally a good friend, not just a visitor," she said as she buttered the 297th ham sandwich

For every ham sandwich she makes, Mrs. Evenson (pronounced EVE-sign, as she quickly points out) awards herself a hunk of ham, a habit that over the years added many pounds to her 5-foot-1-inch frame.

"I went to a California fat farm a couple ars ago," she says, "I didn't lose any weight there, but I lost six pounds on the bus

"We don't have much cash with us," a customer interrupted. "Can we put the food on a credit card?

"Send me the money when you home," Mrs. Evenson said. "Who's next?" 'What are you going to call this story?' she asked a reporter and then answered, "I know, 'I Sell Gas by Day and Sex by Night,' or 'She Peddles Gas, Ham and Passion.' " And then Mrs. Evenson broke into the jolliest cackle this side of Midville.

"I always put my characters in fictional places," she-said, "otherwise, people would know who they were."

Not likely. For starters, the sheep far outnumber the humans on this arid, rolling rangeland 1,940 miles west of Times Square where a "big town" has 3,000 people Unencumbered by wires, billboards or houses, the two-lane highway stretches straight to the horizon. Here, travellers do not drive their cars; they aim them.

"In the old days when the road was gravel," Mrs. Evenson said, "you stopped everywhere. But nowadays people don't stop so much at the little places."

Which, in a way, is all right with Mrs. Evenson because it gives her more time to write.

"I get up at 7," she said. "The store is open at 7.02 and I'm writing by 7.05. But I don't suppose I've ever written longer than an hour at a time. There are always interruptions and my customers like to be talked to, not waited on. You know, I made ham sandwiches for some of them when they were children. Now they bring their kids here. Yes, sir, I make really good ham sand-wiches." She is right.

Mrs. Evenson's first story, written when she was 6 years old, was called "Lydia and Her Little Sister Hazel."

"It was terrible." Mrs. Evenson recalled.
Most of her stories, punched out on an ancient typewriter in her apartment behind the restaurant counter, run between 3,500 and 5 000 words, for which she might earn $400.

Mahoney, national director of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, told an opening session of the organization's 53rd annual convention that the three vows usually associated with priests and nuns are for all Christians. "The greatest thrust today is away from these. The business world is almost completely mad. Its pace is idiotic, its advertising slick ... the theme is possess, consume, you need this.

The bishop said television, movies, newspapers and mag-azines have created a "makebelieve world where the phoney happy man is a swinger where sexual liberation without fidelity is virtuous."

He said the emphasis on "doing your own thing, with every man for himself" should be changed to "rational submission to the larger view, the value system" personified in Christ.

"Excellent young men and women are walking away from religious vocations because they can't be radical enough . . . poverty, chastity and obedience must be taught in the home." About 200 delegates, repre-centing 100,000 Roman Catho-

Around the world, in places as far apart as Yemen or Central America, 20 million people are victims of river blindness.

Living just a few miles from the banks of the decep-tively beautiful White Volta River—infested with blackfly which spreads the malady— Sigiye could expect his own son to be blind shortly after the age of 30.

But if one of the most ambitious health projects ever to be launched in Africa is successful, Sigiye's son will always be able to do his farming standing up and,

The project's aim is to wipe disease-spreading blackfly, mainly by spraying insecticide from a fleet of light aircraft and helicopters.

They will operate down thousands of miles of fastflowing rivers spread over 232,000 square miles in west African countries—Upper Volta, Ghana, the Ivory Coast, Mali, Dahomey, Togo

Organized by the World Health Organization (WHO) and supported by a half-dozen international groups, particularly the powerful Washington-based World Bank, the $120-million project hopes to eradicate the blackfly or simulum damosum over a period of 20 to 25

Friday with presentations at 11:30 a.m. in Centennial and 5 p.m. in Bastion Square.

The whole thing starts with a great parade full of carnival atmosphere to precede a series of playlets. These include a gorgeous dragon, a medieval red devil, improbable royalty, a motor car that prowls, grumbles, snaps its bonnet and gobbles people, a fantastic policeman Imagination is carried through in versatil-

The show has exuberance to match its originality and artistic stature and is worthy of the fascinated attention bestowed upon it by mixed audiences of kiddles and adults. Directors are Bill and Antoinette Dalrymple and the company consists of Gary Po-grow, Daphne Mannell, Barbara McColl, John Dalrymple and Bruce Bombere. The group has been performing for three years in Vancouver parks. Prior to coming to the west coast, Bill Dalrymple was associated with the widely known Bread and Puppet Theatre of New York.

Gaudet Gives Up, Jailed

TAOS, N.Me. (Reuter) — Edwin Gaudet, 28, the man accused of threatening the life of President Nixon in New Orléans, gave himself up to Secret Service agents Wednes-

The Secret Service announced it was looking for Gaudet last Monday at the same time President Nixon cancelled an appearance in a motorcade through New Orleans.

But while both the secret service and the FBI say they are working hard to discover the roots of "a very real" plot to kill the president, some sources indicate Gaudet was probably not part of the conspiracy.

Federal agents filed a warrant in New Orleans against Gaudet on the grounds that he had threatened the life of the president after he allegedly told customers in a bar Aug. 15: "Somebody ought to kill President Nixon. If no one has the guts, I'll do it."

Local police declined comment Wednesday on a report by a New Orleans television station that three persons are being sought in connection with the conspiracy. The station said the justice department had authorized the arrest of three per-

Gaudet was coaxed into surrendering by his wife, Judy. During his arrest he blurted out: "The government is organized crime; the Pope is head of the Mafia, and I support Angela Davis for president of the United States."

He was arraigned in Albuquerque, N.M., Wednesday and held on $100,000 bond set by U.S. Magistrate Robert McCoy, pending a removal hearing Aug. 30.

Gaudet was arrested three years ago for throwing a burning American flag at Nixon's car during a presidential visit

Imphies Whites

Comfortable white shoes for the hard-working girl.

Oomphies Working Whites are different two ways; first, they're the only whites you can buy with Oomphies cushion of comfort. A thick layer of foam between you and the hard, hard world. So Oomphies are more comfortable, hour after hour, day after day. Second, Oomphies don't look like ordinary white working shoes. They've got the same fashion-flair excitement you look for in Oomphies dress shoes. Look into Oomphies at one of the fine stores listed below.

The Case Presented For the Horseradish

AURIO DE LA CONTRACTION DEL CONTRACTION DE LA CO

Horseradish is not a common subject for garden columns for its use as a food item is rated as being limited. Most people know it as a creamy white sauce used with roast beef.

Fortunately, with the disappearance of beef from our level of sight we still have use for the massive horseradish plant growing near our compost heap. For three years now we have used the young leaves as a fresh salad vegetable, and a picking of the next oldest leaves as a cooked vegetable with an other green vegetable. Either way, they add zest to other ingredients, plus the goodness of fresh green leaves.

A root of horseradish if you have it on your property needs to be kept under control, but its roots are no more invasive than, say, rhubarb roots, though cut up pieces will each start a new plant.

Both rhubarb and horseradish need a deep soil, rich in humus, able to hold moisture in summer. But horseradish does not object to wet soil in winter though I haven't tried really drowning it. It needs sun as does rhubarb, and a good watering when the compost heap gets its occasional soaking.

If you plant is getting larger than you need, and friends are reluctant to take your surplus you will have to either bury the surplus at least two feet down in subsoil, or chop it

This sounds drastic, for everything should be composted but horseradish root pieces and crowns sprout all over the heap if tossed in.

The ideal way of growing horseradish for the thick roots to be grated for sauce, is to make a firm pile of good soil three feet high by two feet across and whatever length required.

In late November or early March, insert short pieces of root at a 45 degrees angle to the surface, about six inches down from the top of the heap. Keep the top of the root piece outermost or you'll have the plants trying to grow upside

The big rough leaves of this 'radish die down in late fall or by Christmas. The roots for grating can be dug from an established patch at any time of winter that the soil is frost

For a couple of months there are no leaves, then with a mild spell in February green bud shoots are noticed at the crowns.

Then, on goes a low bottomless box, or deep flat, over a patch of root, with a piece of glass to keep in a little warmth. Given this encouragement, and a heavy sack over the glass on freezing nights, new young leaves soon appear. From then on, there's a continuous supply to freshen purchased green produce, or to substitute when saladings in the coldframe are

On occasion, however, paradoxical situations develop. For example, in today's deal the possession of the lowest card in a suit, instead of an intermediate card or two, enabled declarer to employ his resources most judiciously. When the dummy came into view, it was rather obvious that the club suit had to be attacked in order to bring home nine-tricks. But there was a "worry" in the hand: if East-obtained the lead, a diamond obtained the lead, a diamond play by him through South's king might result in the ambushing of the king (as it would have). Hence South's play had to be designed towards keeping East out of the lead.

captured by the board's queen, after which the three of clubs was led. When East followed with the eight, declarer paused to reflect.

On taking inventory of the five outstanding clubs, South perceived that they were the eight, nine, ten, jack, and queen. Assuming that these five clubs were divided normally (3-2) in the opponents' hands, South realized that he had it in his power to prevent East from winning a club trick. On the eight of clubs, South followed suit with the deuce.

As is evident, West was forced to win the trick with his nine-spot. Whatever West now played back, he could not prevent declarer from making two spades, three hearts, and four clubs.

Had declarer elected to attack the club suit by leading third club, East would have won the third club lead with his queen. And if East then made the winning shift to a diamond, the defenders would have made four tricks in this

In retrospect, this is a simple hand to play—provided that one's powers of observation are brought to the fore.

The B.C. Land Commission has received more than 700 appeals for exemption from the agricultural land freeze imposed last December by the provincial government.

Appeals have been granted in about 40 per cent of the cases dealt with so far and the remainder are in limbo until permanent agricultural land reserves are designated under the Land Commission

Speaking in Victoria to a small group of farm writers from across Canada attending the annual convention of the Agricultural Institute of Cana-Stupich said about 400 appeals had been processed so far.

Last May the government began lifting the land freeze, which had banned subdivision or building on any farmland. and asked regional districts to submit appeals for exemption and begin drafting permanent agricultural boundaries.

Stupich said he expects the first land plans to be submitted to the Land Commission by late September.

The 90-day deadline imposed on B.C.'s 28 regional districts expires Sept. 30 but Stupich said extensions will be granted if districts show they actually need more time to draw up their farm bounda-

Central to the subjects covered by the report are demands for consumer protection similar to the widespread but unspecified protection offered consumers generally.

The report says fune person forced to cope with death has been demonstrated to reduce the capacity to bar-gain effectively and rationally for the supply of suitable dis-position arrangements," the report says.

The report recommends a general prohibition of unfair, deceptive or misleading industry trade practices and the setting up of a regulatory board to ensure enforcment of these laws.

The board would be able to enter and investigate funeral homes suspected of con-travening the act and fine members up to $10,000 for a proven violation.

The Golden Tide Comes In

By FRED CHAFE Canadian Press Staff Writer

Swathers and combines are beginning to move across Prairie grain fields to bring in crop golden in more ways

But it won't be the kind of mother lode that could have brought Canada unheard-of riches in export sales at a time when world demand for cereals and protein-rich oil-seeds has pushed prices out of

The vagaries of climate, and acreage lower than ex-pected because of farmers' problems in switching from a bust-to-boom tempo, mean a total crop no bigger than average and perhaps below it.

No one will hazard a flat forecast of this year's total Prairie production, although the figure of 580 million bushels of wheat has been mentioned as reasonable.

Canada's wheat crop last year, the bulk of it produced in the three Prairie provinces, was 533.3 million bushels against a 10-year average of 600 million. There were 518.4 million bushels of barley, 300.2 million of oats, 13.5 million of rye, 19 million of flax and 57.3 million of rapeseed.

Wheat acreage is up this year to 24.2 million bushels from 21.3 million last year, almost entirely through increased plantings in the tradi-tional breadbasket province of Saskatchewan. Oats and flax also are up slightly, barley and rapeseed down

Given these acreages, any total harvest can come only from high per-acre yields. And phrases like "fair to good early-harvested crops" and "average to below-average" dot the reports of agriculture departments and wheat pools. The federal government, in spring seeding guidelines to farmers, recommended 28 million acres of wheat. It proposed 14 million acres of bar-ley but got only 11.7 million, down two per cent from 1972.

As a result, wheat coming off the Prairies this fall will not add appreciably to Cana-

After exports of 553 million bushels and domestic con-sumption of 100 million bushels in the crop year which ended July 31, Canada's total wheat carryover was estimated at 366.1 million bushels compared with a 10-year average of 630.1 million.

It contrasts sharply with the

when the federal govern-ment's Lower Inventory for program farmers to take land out of grain production.

Although Prairie-wide spring drought has been blamed for low acreage this year, a Winnipeg agricultural economist said there is another reason.

"A farmer can't go heavily into expanded production on the basis of an optimistic outlook for one year," he explained.

The farmer operates, in effect, "a small factory with the same built-in limitations of production machinery and labor."

"He's not going to buy another tractor or expand his holdings on a one-year gam-ble, although he might do it next season if this is a profitable year and the outlook is still good.

Which U.S. Heads Will Roll Now?

By MARILYN BERGER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Throughout the Nixon Administration, Henry Kissinger has been secretary of state in everything but name. Wednesday the title was bestowed.

For more than four years, the real secretary, William P. Rogers, has operated in his shadow. Foreign policy de-clarations emanated from the White House. On major breakthroughs, the word came from the President. But the explanation of policy in-variably was made in the guttural. German-accented tones of Dr. Kissinger. (See also page 21.)

At the state department Wednesday, there was a curious mixture of jubilation and concern. The jubilation came from those who hoped the decision-making foreign policy would refurn

"to where it belongs. A more restrained official said there was "a certain anticipation about Dr. Kissinger's arrival and a lot of question marks about whether the fact that he is remaining the president's national security adviser will mean that the national security council's functions will shift over to apprehensions, with many wondering which heads would roll. Clearly, big changes are anticipated.

Rogers went to the state department with the most sive of credentials record of long friendship with the president. He left with that president's expression of "regret," but the departure came only two days after Rogers spoke out for the first time about the events of Wa tergate, saying the nation must not become "so obsessed with security matters that laws are freely vio-

It was also to have been a time of patching up relations with America's allies. Europe and Japan had become worried that in moving from conciliation to negotiation with its adversaries, the United States had jettisoned its special relationships with its friends.

But the scandals known as Watergate had brought new pressures to bear. "Is it possible, he asked some Newsweek interviewers recently "to insulate foreign policy from the general difficulties we are facing as a nation? don't know the answer, but that is the question that tor-

U.S. FLAG BURNED

Demonstrators gathered in a Buenos Aires soccer stadium Wednesday, burned a U.S. flag to celebrate the first anniversary of a clash between U.S. Marine guards and leftist guerillas.

It was the first serious

Curtis said a year ago he would not likely run again for the mayoralty in Saanich Nov. 17. Nov. 17. From time to time there had been suggestions Curtis would offer himself for another term, but he consistently denied any such intention.

His statement continued: 'Speculation with respect to my possible candidacy in the city of Victoria has occurred fairly often in the past few months and, again, it has been encouraging and inter-

He dismissed the hostility which has developed between himself and Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen as "unproduc

"It has been unproductive," he said, "and I believe that it has also proven to be a source of embarassment to some al-dermen in the city and, obviously, to a number of Victoria residents.

'Curtis said he wouldn't endorse any particular mayoralty or aldermanic candidate in Saanich — "It is most inappropriate for a mayor to indicate preference for one particular individual" — but stressed that Saanich's next mayor should be one with previous municipal experience.

Announcing that his involvement on the municipal level would end Dec. 31, Curtis also left the door open to re-entering municipal politics at a later date.

JURORS WARNED ABOUT GOSSIP

An inquest into last Saturday's plane crash at Sidney was adjourned Wednesday until Oct. 29. The lengthy delay was ordered by Coroner Edmond St. Jorre to allow a transport ministry investigating team time to complete a report on the crash that claimed five lives.

The coroner warned the seven-man jury against being influenced by gossip about the crash during the adjournment. They should listen only to testimony at the inquest, he said.

Those killed were pilot Ted Clark, 22, of Marine Apartments, Sidney; Janet Quelch, 19, of Vancouver: Bruce Gordon, 27, of 1256 Roy; Janet Ruttan, 24, of 1256 Roy; and Katherine Roderick, 24, of New Brunswick,

The badly burned bodies were identified by Victoria dentist Dr. William Evans and Sidney RCMP constable Jose Paul Brochez.

Wheat prices opened sharply lower, declined even fur-ther to the 20-cent limit and then advanced almost 40 cents above their low point of the day. The advances were trimmed, however, in later trading.

There was practically no activity on corn futures all sharply lower, declined steadily in slow trading and then advanced to about 10 cents above the previous day's close for most ontions.
